

TWELVE MURDER INDICTMENTS ON DANIELLO'S STORY

Witness in "Death Syndicate" Case Returned From Brooklyn on Court Order.

The Grand Jury returned to Judge Nott in General Sessions this afternoon twelve indictments charging murder in the first degree as the result of the confession of Ralph Daniello, alias "Happy the Barber" who has uncovered the so-called "murder syndicate" controlling gambling and graft in the Italian colonies of Greater New York. Daniello was brought over from Brooklyn by Detectives Pucillano and De Martini and was closeted with Assistant District Attorney Renaud before being taken before the Grand Jury. Following his testimony and the testimony of others, the indictments were returned.

Among the cases whose alleged principals are named in the indictments are the killing of Giuseppe De Marco and Charles Lombardi, at No. 34 James Street on July 28, 1916, and the murder of Joseph Massaro, alias "Joe the Chuck."

Daniello was brought from Brooklyn after Justice Goff in the Supreme Court had granted a petition by District Attorney Swann, presented through Henry Stanley Renaud, for a writ of habeas corpus and testimonium for the production in New York County of Daniello, John Mancini and John Esposito.

Indication of friction between the New York and Kings Counties developed after District Attorney Lewis of Kings had declared he had requested that Daniello's alleged confession be withheld from publication. It could be verified and that his name had been ignored.

ST. A. denied the "leak" had occurred in their office.

There is a well dressed young man found this morning at the Supreme Court building in the rear of No. 34 James Street. He had been arrested by the police believe him to be a witness in the case of wholesale killings of Italian gangs made by the police.

The section where the body was found is densely populated, yet crowds passed by for hours before it was discovered. Acting Capt. Devoey of the First Branch Detective Bureau believes the man was killed elsewhere and carried to the tenement.

In one of the pockets was found a draft registration card with the name Tommaso Gaustella, No. 115 Harrison Street, Brooklyn. His trousers pockets had been torn out and all his money taken except fourteen cents. When Daniello made his revelations the police said they feared there might be a "clean-up" of men who might be informers.

They were at work on the first floor of the works of the Hart Roller Bearing Company, at the rear of No. 512 Main Street, when they became dizzy. One managed to stagger into the yard before dropping. Five of the overcome men were revived in the open air, but the other two had to be sent to the hospital. The doctors have not yet determined from what they suffer.

Citizens and Sells Potatoes Held in Railroad Cars.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 30.—Six thousand bushels of potatoes which had been lying in Youngstown railroad yards until in danger of decay, were today set on the market. The local Food Administration Committee, a great throng of consumers quickly purchased the spuds, which sold at 11.35 a bushel.

THE WONDERFUL NEW TOY SHOPS

Await the Children on the Sixth Floor

Bring the children to see the living dolls, the Little Bo-Peep Shop, the Little Jack Horner Shop, the Little Miss Muffet Shop and the Make-Believe Zoo, where they can see make-believe animals of all kinds, from the funny little monkeys to the tiger with her little ones that nod a welcome to all.

Toys that are helpful, practical, interesting and amusing.

The little shops enable us to arrange the toys so that the little folks can see them at a glance.

Bo-Peep and Jack Horner are the door of their cute little shops to bid the children welcome. The living dolls play with the little dolls dressed up just like them.

The new and greatly enlarged Toy Section gives us room to invite all the children without crowding.
